

OCEANDOTCOMM

LUMCON.EDU/OCEANDOTCOMM

OCEANDOTCOMM is a collaborative, storytelling, social media event hosted by the Louisiana Universities Marine Consortium (LUMCON). This multiday, residential event is geared toward science communicators from any background that want to innovate new models in science communication and be part of the greatest science narratives ever told.

LUMCON is inviting the most energetic and dedicated science communicators using social media from all over the globe to converge in southern Louisiana for 4 days to tell a story like one has never been told before. This groundbreaking event will be the opportunity every science communicator has dreamed about. LUMCON is dedicating all of its staff, facilities, research vessels, and community connections to this event. Participants in science communication will combine their diverse backgrounds of mediums and methods to reach broad audiences through social media and popular science outlets.

If you are a science communicator wanting to be a part of this collaborative effort to take science communication into a new era, this is the event for you. Apply today!

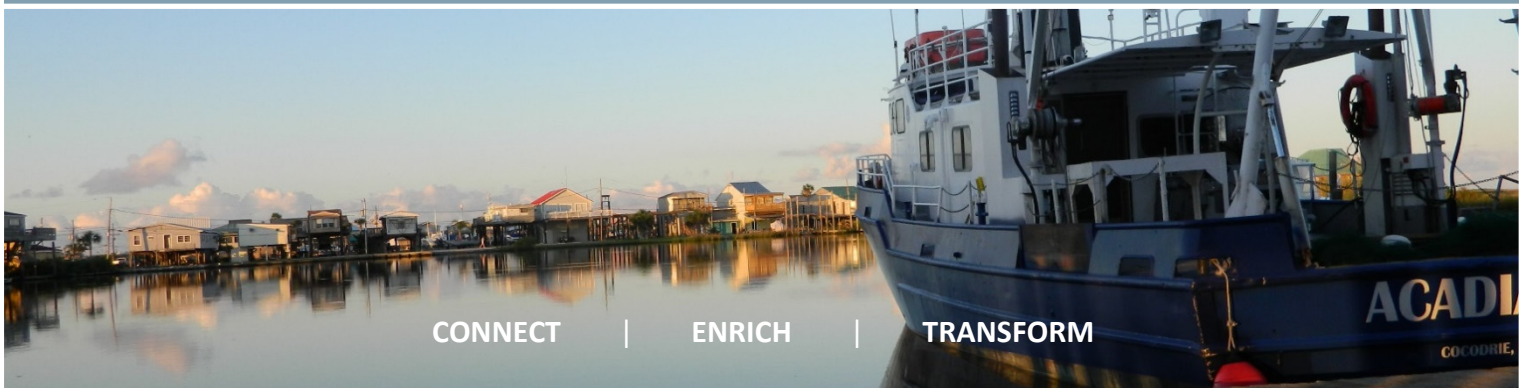

Dates: March 15 – 20, 2018

Cost: $50 plus travel to New Orleans

Apply: lumcon.edu/oceandotcomm

Applications close Feb 1, 2018 and preference will be given to those who apply early.

Questions? Contact Virginia Schutte, Science Media Officer: vschutte@lumcon.edu.

CONNECT | ENRICH | TRANSFORM